Col. E. F. Holmes Writes About Whirling Dervishes at Constantinople

WITNESSES REAL CEREMONY.

The Dress, Beliefs, Ideas and Skill of Those Who Participate in Welrd Rites.

Col. E. F. Holmes, who is making an extended trip through Europe, describes the practises of "whirling dervishes" and this strange class of people in a recent letter to a friend its this city. Excerpts from the letter

It is seldon, now that one can see the real thing in the line of "dancing dervishes" or "howling dervishes" the Mohammedan religion, attended by the fanatic intensity and zeni of the people of that faith.

To see this in Cairo is only to witness a put-up show for the benefit of toura put-up show for the benefit of tourists, or whoever will pay the price.
Like the exhibitions of harem life, the reality is not shown to outsiders any more. There was a time when this was not true, and properly undertaken it was possible to get this glimpse into the family life of the oriental. The privilege, however, was abused by traveling people—whether English or American, German or French, I do not know—se that the custom has been enknow-so that the custom has been en-tirely discontinued, and like the danc-ing dervishes, what is seen is a show made up for the occasion.

ARE RELIGIOUS FANATICS.

In Constantinople, however, this extremely interesting ceremony can still be seen and there is nothing in it of a nature at all immeral, or other than of be seen and there is nothing in it of a nature at all immeral, or other than of seriousness. These whirling dervishes are religious fanatics deeply imbued with the holiness of the act. You instinctively remove your hat in their presence. There are no feelings of mirth or levity. The poor, benighted beings that practise this rite may be pitled but they do it in all seriousness and with great deliberation. They are like an order of monks in the Christian world. They dress in a peculiar way and all nearly alike. The garment has a full skirt of woolen material reaching to the ankles; some shade of gray, maroon, or other shade of red. It has a fairly fitting body with sleeves, and a tall conical cap is worn—taller and of heavier material than the ordinary fez.

THE DANCE ITSELF.

Most of the dancers are barefooted and the movement consists in turn-ing round and round on nearly a fixed pivot, moving only six inches accound the circle at each revolution, or about the distance of the width of the hotthe circle at each revolution, or about the distance of the width of the bottom of the man's foot. The dancer whirls on the right foot, which is not lifted from the floor, the propelling power being the other foot, which gains a new position at each revolution. Thus the effort is considerable, or would be to one not used to it, and the skill required in the movement must require a long period of practise. Sixty revolutions a minute, or one every second, was the fastest that we timed, and some rather old men only half that. This motion, of course, causes the skirt to gather air underneath, so that it stands out as full as the material will allow. When under way they have both arms extended—the right a little the higher, with palm up, the left a little below what would be a horizontal line across the body, but with palm turned down—the idea being that the divine current from heaven to earth thus passes through their bodies. Their eyes are closed, or nearly so, and after about 15 minutes the music ceases; some sort of command is given by the lead closed, or hearly so, and after about 15 minutes the music ceases; some sort of command is given by the leadder, and they stop in their places without showing the least sign of dizziness. They will then open their eyes and even glance surreptitiously to the gallery where spectators stand and where the musicians are located. The peculiar instruments peculiar instruments are played by beating time with the fingers upon some kind of skin stretched tight over a frame, accompanied by some four or five voices in their sing-song drawl-ing tones—the least like music of any-thing one could imagine.

ATTENDANT CEREMONY.

ATTENDANT CEREMONY.

The space set aside for the service is about 40 feet square and the floor of planed lumber is in no sense what might be called a dancing floor. Before the service commences all are sitting around the sides of this space, and one, an elderly patriarch, is squatted on the floor at one side. The dancers take position on the three sides of the floor and at the proper time each passes before the chief, howing before he reaches him, passing to the other side, and bowing again. They all keep a sort of rythmic step, and so make their way around the circle. The whole is dancers do this whirl. At first the movement is rather slow and the skirts seem to be in the way; their arms are bent; the hands pass along up their chests and as the motion increases the arms become extended and are apparently quite rigid in that position. The whole thing lasted nearly three-quarters of an hour and the few of us visitors in an unbeliever to witness this rite, as in their fanatic zeal these devotees might attack them. Even to attempt to visit their mosques during service is attended with danger. Our guide, a good Mahommedan, did offer to dress good Mahommedan, did offer to dress ne up in Arab costume and smuggle ne in; but naturally the offer was lectined. Still he told us what they lid, and it is little other than read-ng from the Koran, which is their Bl-ile. FOR THE OIL BURNERS.

Work Starts on Storage Tank for San Pedro Locomotives Here.

Salt Lake is to have an oil storage ank for oil-burning engines of the San Pedro road, and work has already begun on it construction in the Short Line pards. Its capacity will be 15,000 galons to be supplied by a train of tank cars from Los Angeles as may be needed. This with the 15,000 gallons tank at Lynn and the 30,000 gallons tank at Milford will supply the oll burners with all the free needed.

Milford will supply the oil burners with ail the fuel needed.

This class of locomotive is desirable in that there is no danger of burning up things along the right of way, there is no smoke, and the cabs are much cleaner than with the coal burning engines. The principal objection affects mostly the train hands who have to ride on the tops of freight cars, and catch the hot sand from the stack that is thrown into the furnace at intervals to clean out the flues. These would otherwise clog up with the residue of the consumed oil which is mixed with the steam blast, forming a more or less gelatineous compound. The occasion for the extension of the oil burning service to Sait Lake is due of course to the scarcity of coal, in fact the inability of the railroad company to obtain it.

RAILROAD DEMAND IS HEAVY.

About Thirty Strikers Leave the City To Take Fermanent Places at Higher Rate of Wages.

28th DAY OF STRIKE.

With the telegraph strike four weeks old tomorrow noon, the situation is no better than it was when the men first walked out to begin their series of daily meetings, and to organize for a long

From local appearances an effective settlement is now an impossibility, under any conditions, and the regeneration of the service will not be consummated through any series of orders to return to work, or patching up of any kind of a truce.

This is because the telegraphers, wearying of the delay, have gone into other occupations. Of the 60 men who walked out of the Western Union and Postal offices, over 30 have now left Salt Lake to accept employment from the railroads or from brokerage concerns in other natte of the country who have other parts of the country who have signed the union scale. Vice President Smith has left the local field of battle to accept a position at Bunea Vista, in the railroad service. He says that the place pays him the equivalent of $135 per month in Sait Lake, and that no inducement will be sufficient to get him back into the Western Union service at even the wages demanded by the union.

The telegraph situation, so far as the sending of messages is concerned, is but little better than at any time since but little better than at any time since the strike. A woman came in to the meeting of strikers this morning and stated that she filed a message at Ogden a short time ago, for transmission to Ely, Nevada, where her grandson was supposed to be dying. They assured her the message had been sent without the least delay, and that an answer might be expected any moment. She then waited 24 hours, and left for Ely, where she arrived just as the message was being delivered to the person to whom it was addressed. The woman reported that she had seen attorneys and was preparing to file a suit against the Western Union for torneys and was preparing to file a suit against the Western Union for

A very tired looking set of officials still continue to man the keys in the telegraph offices, and they are assisted by a few operators of varying merit.

They announced that the matter was still under advisement and that an announcemet of a decision as to whether or not to call the jury would be made in a

RECRUITS ARE WANTED

Enlistment in the Army is Not So Popular as Heretofore.

The local army recruiting station is taking in recruits at the rate of 10 a month, a number that the staff in charge says will increase as the seaprogresses. Recruits will be needed at Fort Douglas shortly as on the fourteenth instant, the time of the fourteenth instant, the time of enlistment of some $0 soldiers in the Twenty-first infantry will expire, and before the Fifteenth infantry arrives here, and the time of the remaining enlisted men in the battalion now at the fort, will expire, thus leaving the post without a garrison, unless recruits are rushed in to fill the vacancles. The 18 or 20 men left over from the Twenty-ninth infantry have been drafted into the Twenty-first regiment instead of being sent to other posts.

An intelligent non-commissioned officer said today, that the reason why the regular army is dwindling down so largely through refusal of discharged men to re-enlist, was because of the neglect of Congress to raise the pay of the men 30 per cent as has been proposed, and because of the arduous and entirely unnecessary weekly practise hikes about the country. The hikes have been, it is true, reduced to three days in the month instead of three days per week, but the men object to it all the same as a steady thing, although for recruits to show them what may be expected in the field it is all right. It is said that the reason why the enlisted men do not receive the increase of pay is because of the opposition of the commissioned officers who are by the proposed legislation given only an increase of 10 per cent, while they claim the same rate of increase as the enlisted men.

What the Organ of the Grocers Thinks of the Newspapers.

The newspapers of Sait Lake City have shown neither fairness or common sense in the controversy. They have shown the worst kind of partisanship, they have proved that body and soul they are for self. They have espoused the cause of a lot of grafters for the graft there is in it for them. They have lied barefacedly; they have distorted whatever has been them. They have hed barefacedly; they have distorted whatever has been said or done by any member of the B. & G. association, imputing to them the worst motives at all times. They have bartered their honor for a mess of pottage, and lost the respect of all fair minded people. They have succeeded in exciting a few old irabeciles like themselves or few brainless caxcombs, and possibly a few housewives, but they have not deselved one single honest business man, either as to their purposes or aims. They know they have supported the R. & association simply and solely for the money they deece them out of, they know the real estate sharks as well as everyone else knows them, and possibly better. They know their records and esteem them accordingly.

They have waged a viliainous and unfair war against the best class of citizens in this city and the end is not yet. They have not had the decency or the moral courage to give the other side a fair hearing, in fact they ridiculed, distorted their words their sayings and doings. They have branded them as thieves, vagabends, highwaymen, for whom the prison cell was too good a place. If you and your hirelings think that with slander and falsehand you can destroy the B. & G. association you will have another guess coming. If you are still under the impression that the members thereof are simply slaves to dance at the dictum of any one or that they will stand supinely all your viliainy and abuse, be at once undeceived. When public newspapers will wantenly and with malice aforethought blackmail, because the objects of the abuse are only butchers and grocers, they overshoot the mark, for some of them may know as much as they do not sell their integrity for money as they have done.—The fistail Merchants' association of the field of Utah. #### SINGULAR CASES OF MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

On the average, according to a recent qually, remaining lost to their friends as completely as if the earth had opened to swallow them up, and these baffling mysteries occur in a large proportion during the holiday season.

Some time ago Americans were shocked at the inexplicable disappearance of the general superintendent of the Great Northern railroad of America, Mr. B. F. Egan, a young man of striking personality and a genial disposition, which made him immensely popular. A special car had been requisitioned to take himself and his party into the Rocky Mountains in search of big game. At a certain point on the in vain, and today the fate of the genial young superintendent is still unsolved.

A few years back Mr. Arthur Winstanley, high sheriff of Leicester, one of the most popular men in the Midlands, walked down the pier at Folkestone to welcome his sister and mother who were coming home from Boulogne. The boat duly came in and the ladies auxiously scanned the assembled crowd for their relative. But Mr. Winstanley was not there, and from the moment he stepped upon the pier, full of pleasurable anticipation, he was never seen again. He had vanished as completely as if the sea had engulfed him.

Mr. Doughas Pyne, at one time M. P. for West Waterford, also disappeared at sea in a manner almost as mysterious as the foregoing. He was going on a holiday to England, and went aboard the packet at Dubliu, bound for Holyhead, in a gay humor, chatting with the captain and other officials on board. At Holyhead Mr. Pyne was nowhere to be found, the only record of his presence on the boat, his bag, being discovered later just as he had put it down. What became of him will never be known.

It is evident that if these redhot asbes were thrown out in backyards or vacant lots the high winds that sweep across the plains would scatter them broadcast, making them a constant menace to the eyes, and olothing of passers by, as well as to inflammable property of every kind. Every house is therefore required by efty ordinance to be provided with an ash pit, shaped like an old-rashioned bake oven, with small openings at the top, through which the ashes are thrown. Another opening in one side at the bottom permits their removal when the pit is full—Kansaa City Times.
